

Carolyn R. Morillo

EDUCATION

University of Michigan	1955-58	PhD 1965
University of Washington	1954-55	MA 1955
	1950-51
	1947-50	BA 1950 Magna Cum Laude
Stanford University	1946-47

PUBLICATIONS

Books

Contingent Creatures: A Reward Event Theory of Motivation and Value, Rowman & Littlefield, 1995.

Articles

“Reward Event Systems: reconceptualizing the explanatory roles of motivation, desire and pleasure,” Philosophical Psychology 5, March 1992, 7-32.

“The Reward Event and Motivation,” The Journal of Philosophy 87, April 1990, 169-186.

“Defining Duties and Constructing Morality: Comments on Narveson,” Tulane Studies in Philosophy, 31, 1985, 58-66.

“Epistemic Luck, Naturalistic Epistemology, and the Ecology of Knowledge: or What the Frog Should Have Told Dretske,” Philosophical Studies 46, 1984, 109-1929.

“Reply to Gowen,” Philosophy and Phenomenological Research 40, March 1980, 434-435.

“Comments on Gore and Green,” Tulane Studies in Philosophy 28, 1979, 125-134.

“The Logic of Arguments from Contingency,” Philosophy and Phenomenological Research 37, March 1977, 407-417.

“Doing, Refraining, and the Strenuousness of Morality,” American Philosophical Quarterly 14, January 1977, 29-39.

“As Sure As Shooting,” Philosophy 51, January 1976, 80-89.

“Definitions of Poverty and Environmental Criticisms of Affluence,” in Alan Leonhard (ed.), Essays on the Powerlessness of the Poor (Louisiana Committee for the Humanities, 1976), 2-10.